Antiques: The Last Owner

Dialogue sample · Eleanor

MATTEO MARRALE
NARRATIVE DESIGNER & WRITER
DIGITAL BROS GAME ACADEMY

TRIGGER / ACTION	DIALOGUE	WORDS	DESIGNER NOTES
First tool picked Player picks up the first tool to restore the object	Oh no. Yet another stranger pawing at my things. Magnificent. You there, are you one of the servants? No. Of course not. No one announces themselves, no one brings the tea. As always. It was an enormous house, mine. Far too big for a lonely woman. My husband was forever away on business, in ports whose names I never bothered to learn... and I was left to receive guests out of duty and write letters no one read. At least the saucer... oh. It's chipped. That too. In that house everything cracked, and no one noticed in time. Come now, don't just stand there. If you must touch my things, at least make yourself useful. Mend it!	117	Manifestation: introduces herself, complains, blocks the restoration.
Workbench view changed to ritual table Player turns the view from the workbench to the ritual table (left), Before finishing his ritual	No. No. Hands off! You don't touch that until we settle a certain matter. Look where you've put me. This table: cold, bare, brr, truly dreadful. A lady like me doesn't belong in a place like this: I used to receive visits from duchesses, you know. Half the country would turn to look at me! I want a proper home. Somewhere around here there has to be something that suits me. Find it! And be quick about it: I've already spent a whole life waiting for someone to notice me. I shan't start again now, left on a table while you play with my tea set.	106	Veiled request for the home-object (Jewelry Box).
Wrong Home Object Placed Player brings the wrong home-object to the ghost	This? This dusty piece of junk? Who do you take me for? A lady wouldn't lay her dirty gloves on it. Did you listen to a single word I said? Try again, and, this time, use your head!	38	Rebuke for wrong home-object → leads to game over.
Ritual Completed Player completes the ritual with the correct home-object	Oh. Oh. Now this is a place worthy of a lady. Look at the quality. Someone kept it with care, you can tell when a thing has been loved. I had a younger sister. She knew how to make a room beautiful. I was the beauty of the family, everyone said so; but she had everything else: the invitations, the laughter, the men who turned for her and not for me. I never forgave her for it.	77	Thanks the player and opens the sister theme (Beatrix).